AS TO JOHN EDWARDS

At the recent teachers' institute held in Elko, State Superintendent Bray attempted to explain to the teachers present where he stood on the county institutes, about which so much has been said in the state papers of late. There was a time when Mr. Bray could talk entertainingly, but that lies in the past, and he impresses us as a doddering old man, who has served his time and is entitled to a rest. The educational work of the state should be entrusted to a trained man, one of ability, and if Mr. Bray insists on being supported by the state let us pension him, and by so doing we will be the gainer.—Elko Free Press.

WITH REFERENCE TO MODERN AIRCRAFT

To the Editor Tonopah Bonanza, Sir:—With reference to an article that appears in a contemporary dealing with the new superplanes of the French government, will you be so kind as to allow me space in your valuable paper to correct errors contained in that article.

I herewith quote the gist of said article: "The craft appears to be the 'bombardment aeroplane' referred to in a recent dispatch. It is said to dwarf all other aircraft, having a span of 70 feet and, with its three superposed planes, rising to a height of 20 feet. The body will hold twelve men. The armament consists of four 1 1/2-inch guns. Another account credits it with 3-inch guns. And, although the latter have a recoil of something like 600 pounds, it is a fact that means have been found for using them from aeroplanes."

Cutting out the claims that the machine rises "almost vertically" and that it has the advantages of the Zeppelin including endurance, it is by no means the biggest or the best of the bunch; nor must it be supposed that since their twin fuselage machine the fountain of German aeroplane design has run dry.

With reference to the claim that it will hold twelve men, a greater number was long ago carried on a single aeroplane (Vedriennes carried twenty-one on a Blériot biplane).

The French have no gun corresponding to the 1 1/2-inch and furthermore they have no 3-inch guns. It also is true that the 3-inch gun has a recoil of 600 pounds. The recoil of the latter is more like 876 pounds and although it is a fact that they have been used on aeroplanes no mention is made of the fact that the recoil on those occasions was automatically taken up by using cylinders containing a series of plates (perforated) and glycerine.

AUXILIARY SHIPS NEEDED FOR NAVY

VESSELS MAY SERVE PURPOSES OF COMMERCE IN TIMES OF PEACE

(By Associated Press.) NEW YORK, Nov. 13.—The necessity of providing at least 400 auxiliary ships for the navy as an arm of the national defense was urged by Senator Duncan U. Fletcher of Florida last night at a meeting of the Academy of Political Science at Columbia University as justification in itself for the enactment of a bill for the government ownership of merchant ships. Senator Fletcher had charge of the government ship purchase bill in the senate last session and his words were listened to as indicative of plans for enacting the measure into law at the coming session.

"Last January when the ship purchase bill was before the senate, I pointed out that Great Britain, with all of its naval establishment, had found it necessary to commandeer about 1500 merchant vessels during the present war," said the senator. "I pointed out our need of naval auxiliaries. The need grows on us. The government is compelled to build and acquire ships to meet the necessities of the navy. Navy auxiliaries are a certain and controlling need. Those auxiliaries can be constructed so as to serve commerce in time of peace and be made ready to serve the navy in time of threatened or actual war. It is an arm of the national defense which must be developed and made serviceable."
